

BA (Hons) English Language & Linguistics

During my time at Ludlow school, I enjoyed the analytic nature of essay-based subjects and had an interest, specifically in English. This developed when I was at Ludlow college, where I studied English language, along with history and sociology. Studying these subjects inspired interests for me relating to analysing the use of language. I have recently completed my first year studying English language and linguistics at the University of York- and after my three years I will find work in marketing or journalism.
